The old man made no reply for a slagte and Carolyn May had the pa-"sink in." Finally he said:

"I dunno but you're right, Car'lyn May. Not that it matters much, I mess, whether a body's happy or not in this world," he added grudgingly.

"Oh, yes, it does, Mr. Parlow! It matters a great deal, I am sure-to m and to other people. If we're not happy inside of us, how can we be told himself. theerful outside, and so make other people happy? And that is what I mean about Miss Amanda."

"What about Mandy?" "She isn't happy," sighed Carolyn "Not really. She's just as good as good can be. She is always doing for folks and helping. But she can't be real happy." "Why not?" growled Mr. Parlow, his mee turned away.

"Why-'cause- Well, you know, as she and my Uncle Joe are mad at Mr. Parlow uttered another grunt, but the child went bravely on. "You know very well that's so. And I don't know what to do about it. It just seems too awful that they should hardly speak, and yet be so fond of such other deep down."

"How d'you know they're so fond of each other-deep down?" Mr. Parlow demanded.

"I know my Uncle Joe Ilkes Miss Mandy, 'cause he always speaks so-turning Cherry into the dooryard.

This was not a very encouraging response. Yet he did think of it. The little girl had started a train of innuendo. And it was he, too, who everywhere to line up for the Amerithought in Mr. Parlow's mind that he could not sidetrack.

He knew very well that what she had said about his daughter and Joseph Stagg was quite true. In his self- to him, purporting to come from with the local chapter to be used for Isliness he had been glad all these Mandy. Especially if she married a close-fisted young for Judy Mason, Carolyn May hoped for Judy Mason, Carolyn May hoped business man like Joe Stagg would that something might take Uncle Joe this be true. For, at the reading of his wife's will Mr. Pariow discovered that Mr. Parlow, she can't be happy as long the property they occupied, even the shop in which he worked, which had Stagg home and suggested taking Carobeen given to Mrs. Parlow by her par- lyn May into the woods with her, "for ents, was to be the sole property of the week-end," as she laughingly said. her daughter. Mandy was the heir. Tim, the hackman, had brought the Florida correspondent reports: Mr. Parlow did not possess even a life interest in the estate.

It was a blow to the carpenter. He made a good income and had money in bank, but he loved money too well to wish to spend it after he had made it. He did not want to give up the place. If Mandy remained unmarried there would never be any question between them of rent or the like.

Therefore, if he was not actually the cause of the difference that arose between the two young people, he seized and enlarged upon it and did all in his power to make a mere misunderstanding grow into a quarrel that nelther of the proud, high-spirited lovers would bridge.

Jedidiah Parlow knew why Joe Stagg had taken that other girl to Faith camp meeting. The young man had stopped at the Parlow place when

They have shown a rearlessness amounting to almost utter indifference—if their white officers are with them—a carelessness where personal danger is involved that is at once amazing and sometimes annoying to the officers, and a desire to fight that amounts to a mania.
